After a number of years away from my art, I returned to painting in 2000. It was a new beginning and took time to get the style I felt most comfortable with. I chose Acrylic because it gives me more freedom. I use both brush and palette knife and the time to create a piece varies with each one. Even though I was an art major in high school, no artist or school has influenced me. I have my own style. Subject matter, style, and how I feel about someone or something is the only way I can describe my art. I create because I wish to offer happiness to others. I am inspired by nature and the beautiful world around me. My art reflects the deep feelings I have to live my life as close to the golden rule as possible.
