HAWAIIAN LANDSCAPES, SEASCAPES, WILDLIFE, AND ARCHITECTURAL RENDERING

Scott is a life long self-taught artist originally from Southern California. Now living on Hawaii Island for over 20 years, Scott has hiked and explored the ‘aina extensively. With a camera in one hand and a paintbrush in the other, he works to capture the mana “spirit” of the natural world around him.

During his early college training in architectural design, he gained an appreciation for the form of structures. This view of symmetry is still visible in his current work in nature.

From the deep blue ocean, to the expansive ‘ahupua’a that make up the island, his wish is to see it, touch it, and hear the stories. These experiences then become art. From the exploration has come creation.
